Open to the Public.

CHANDLER OFFERS PUZZLE

With Artless Nymphs as Stained Glass Study.

The members of the Whitney Studio Club have filled several galleries at 15 West Fourth street with paintings and sculptures that make an attractive show, which is to remain open to the public during December. The club is a recently organized group of artists, sculptors, and writers, and its members are of various nationalities. The main rooms have been decorated in excellent taste, and the paintings show to advantage.

One of the most striking of the figure paintings is "Efzeuka the Czech," by John Sloan. The woman is an unusual type and the pose is admirably free from self-consciousness. Paul Dougherty sends "Low Tide Rocks," a marine vigorously brushed in, and Eugene Higgins is represented by a "Street in Greenwich Village," excellently composed and properly mysterious. Francois Varheyden is a newcomer of talent whose two landscapes have fine feeling and brilliant color.

FINELY BOUND BOOKS ON SHOW
Unusual Exhibition Opens at the Union League Club.

An exhibition of finely bound books occupies the gallery of the Union League Club, and to it most of the book dealers and binders in town have contributed. The bindings vary widely in style, but all are highly significant specimens in their class.

The great Golden Sinderen of England is represented by three books, concrete testimony to the sturdy art teachings of William Morris, with whom he was associated. The books are not only admirably put together, but the gold tooling designs on the covers are in the best English taste. Admirable, too, are the French bindings, by John Fils, Chamblé and Meunier.

Other binders that are well represented are Piviere, Miss Prædoux, Sanzoni and Cutliffe, and Zeachendorf. Stickers and his book are showing many bindings but have arranged a special exhibition that illustrates the whole process of hand binding of books.

LEO ORNSTEIN TO MARRY.
Pianist's Engagement to Miss Mallet-Prevost Is Announced.

Leo Ornstein, Russian composer and pianist, is to marry Miss Pauline C. Mallet-Prevost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Severo Mallet-Prevost, of 1155 Park avenue. The announcement was made yesterday. His bride-to-be is 23 years of age. His bride-to-be is a pianist and her family is socially prominent in New York and Paris.

The young people were fellow students under Mrs. Thomas Tupper, and their romance dates from their first meeting while in quest of artistic development. The young woman's family had long aided the promotion of musical affairs. The People's Symphony Concerts, held for many years in Carnegie Hall, Cooper Union and the Washington Irving High School, were financially supported by them.

Mr. Ornstein was born in Kremchensk, southeast Russia. His musical studies began when he was 3. He was a pupil in the Imperial School of Music in Kiev at an early age. At 15 he was coaching opera candidates in Petrograd, whence he fled with his family during the revolution of 1905. He was next found in the New York Conservatory with Mrs. Tupper. Mrs. Tupper took him to Europe when he was 15. His first public concert was in the New Amsterdam Theatre when he was 16. London heard him in 1914 and severely criticized his impressionistic style. He came back to New York in 1915.

BREESKIN IN VIOLIN RECITAL.
Offers Programme of Familiar and Unfamiliar Works.

Elias Breeskin, violinist, gave a recital last evening in Aeolian Hall. He presented a programme contrasting familiar and unfamiliar works, of which the latter predominated. His playing by Sinding was the longest. Kreisler's "Introduction and Scherzo Caprice" for violin unaccompanied was one of the most striking features of the list.

Mr. Breeskin is not a newcomer to the local stage, but has been known for several seasons as a player, possessing some sterling merits. He was not always at his best last evening, but in style he shone to advantage. His technique, particularly in the case with his performance of the first movement of the Sinding suite, in which his command of staccato was masterly.

NEW RISE IN MILK PRICES NOW HINTED

Costs Going Up, Says Head of Federal Food Board.

A hint that a new increase in the price of milk would be forthcoming next month was given out yesterday by John Mitchell, chairman of the Federal Food Board, speaking before a meeting of the New York Food Council in the Hotel Biltmore.

In reply to a question, Mr. Mitchell was defending the seventeen cent rate now obtaining for "B" milk as not excessive in view of the steadily increasing costs of production and distribution.

Albert Manning, secretary of the Dairyman's League, said yesterday that the league never has fixed a definite percentage as a fair profit on the milk handled for New York consumption, but hoped to do so shortly, naming 10 per cent. as a nominal figure. He also said members of the association now handled milk about at cost and only a few of the more efficient were able to make a small profit.

Manning was the chief witness during the afternoon session of the John Doe inquiry into the reasons of the present high cost of milk. Chief City Magistrate McCaddoo is presiding at the investigation in the Criminal Courts Building.

Magistrate McCaddoo asked Manning: "What has the Dairyman's League done for the New York consumer if its object is, as you have stated, to get the highest price possible for its milk?"

"The more we charged the better supply of milk we gave," was the answer.

Before the hearing opened yesterday Sheriff Thomas M. Walker of Cayuga county was in conference with Mr. Dooling for nearly an hour in reference to William Collins, who was arrested in Brooklyn Wednesday night in connection with the burning of a creamery owned by Smith Bros. and the Suffolk Dairy Company, Cato, Cayuga county, last week. Three other men are being sought.

At the hearing Mr. Dooling attempted to connect the fire with business rivalry between different factions of milk dealers.

CENTURY WHIRL BEGINS.
Ed Wynne Perceives Performance,
Which Is Elaborate Revue.

The Century Midnight Whirl started on its giddy and dazzling gyrations according to schedule last night on the roof of the Century Theatre at 11:30 o'clock. Ed Wynne was the main pivot and imbued the whole affair more or less with his genial and pervasive personality. The other principals included Mollie King, Gordon, William M. Doyle, Charles King, Mae West, George K. Rose, and the Rath brothers, Frances Pritchard, James Clemens, Arline Chase, Paul Baker and Julia Ballou.

The revue was an elaborate one, often by the present day standards of other theatre revues. The producers having supplied forty of the fairest corporeal obtainable, gorgeous costumes and tuneful music. Harry Tierney was the composer and Joseph McCarthy and John Henry Mears wrote the lyrics.

CRIPPLED PATIENTS
MAKE TOYS AND RUGS
Montefiore Hospital Exhibits
Occupational Therapy Work.

A white haired man in Montefiore Hospital, who had been an idle patient for twenty-four years, smiled happily yesterday as he moulded little birds from clay. Another, whose arms were partially paralyzed, was making toy ambulances and road rollers out of milk cans.

It was an interesting exhibition that the hospital gave of the occupational therapy work these patients are doing. The exhibit included many novel toys, embroideries, rugs, sweaters, safety nets for beds and clockwork. Occupational therapy, which means constructive effect, both mentally and physically, the department at Montefiore has proved.

"Almost invariably, patients show a marked improvement in spirits," said Miss Stuart, G. Johnson, director of occupations, "after regular periods of occupation, being both heartened and cheered and positive physical improvement is shown. They also give evidence of being better residents of the hospital community, through the establishment of the habit of being occupied."

Most of the articles exhibited yesterday were sold immediately. The money so realized is turned into the fund for support of the department. There are about 120 patients, and the work is carried on in eight wards. The employment of this number of patients has been made possible through the assistance of student teachers from the department of nursing and health at Teachers College.

JOHN D. SHIES AT DOUBLE TAX.
Will Pay on $5,000,000, but Not on $10,000,000 New Assessment.

Because John D. Rockefeller willingly paid taxes on a personal assessment on $5,000,000 last year, Mayor Hylan's tax board thought it would assess him on $10,000,000 this year. But it made a mistake.

Mr. Rockefeller has informed the board that although he paid on $5,000,000 last year an examination of his personal property showed that he was assessable on not more than $3,500,000. He added that if the Tax Commissioners wished to accept taxes on the amount of $10,000,000 it would be agreeable to him. They have decided to accept the offer.

J. P. Morgan has sworn off his personal assessment on $5,000,000 on the ground that his official residence is Glen Cove.

LAST PEARY ESKIMO DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Mene Wallace, Stricken by Grip, Longed to Go Back to Beloved Northland.

TRIED TO JOIN U. S. NAVY

Brought Here in 1900, Returned to Arctic, but Came Back Here Again.

Mene Peary Wallace, last living member of the Eskimo family Admiral Peary brought with him to the United States from the Far North in 1900, has gone the way of all his race when they attempt life out of the Arctic. A letter received yesterday by James Beecroft, of Pelham Manor, with whom the young Eskimo once made his home, tells of his death in New Hampshire October 29 from pneumonia. He had been working in a logging camp for Atton C. Hall of Pittsburg, N. H., was taken ill with influenza and died at Mr. Hall's home without having again seen the frozen Greenland wastes which have called to him continually for almost twenty years. Mene has never been happy here, because the North was his blood and he never could forget it for long.

Mene was about 31 years old. When he was little he was about the brightest of the Eskimo lads Admiral Peary knew in the Arctic village of Etah on the west coast of Greenland, which was the base of so many of the explorer's expeditions toward the pole. When Peary returned to New York in 1900 on his ship the Roosevelt he brought Mene and Mene's father and mother and three brothers with him.

Dashed by Civilization.
They were wide eyed with wonder at the white man's igloos, which seemed as high to them as the desert mountains which fringed Smith Sound. Although Eskimos who live for enough north to escape contact with civilization are almost never ill, there is something about civilization which is fatal to the swarthy little people, and even in villages where whites tough and where Moravian missionaries make infrequent visits they are prone to tuberculosis, pneumonia and other maladies, which almost always prove fatal. And so, seven months after the family reached here, Mene was the only one left alive.

Soon after Mene came here he was adopted by William Wallace and lived with him for several years. Then he made his home with Mr. Beecroft at Pelham Manor, to whom he became greatly attached. The death of his parents and brothers added to his homesickness and the feeling never left him. His suffering was so intense that when Peary returned to Greenland in 1906 he took Mene with him as far as Etah, continuing his trip northward and eventually reaching the pole.

Returns to White Men.
When the McMillan expedition reached Etah Mene was engaged as a guide. He returned to Etah with it, his association with white men again stirring something which made him want to see the white man's country once more, although he never could explain just why. So in 1916 Mene left Etah with his dog team and mushed 400 miles over fields of ice and snow to the Danish village of Harslev. In the month of Greenland, where he stowed away on board a vessel and worked his passage to New York. He had been here but a few days when the old longing for the North seized him and he wanted to go back, but he never could.

Mene tried to enlist in the navy, but was rejected. He was vigorous physically, an expert rifle shot and could ride a horse like one of his distant kinsmen the Tartars.

In his letter Mr. Beecroft, Mr. Hall said Mene lived only seven days after the influenza came. The doctors said he must be buried at once, so he was, in the little cemetery at Pittsburg.

WILLIAM H. STEVENS.
William H. Stevens, who fought in the civil war with Hawkins's Zouaves, died Wednesday in Rutherford, N. J., where he was a leading merchant and active in civic, charitable and fraternal circles. Heart trouble was the cause. He was born in Brooklyn seventy-seven years ago, but moved to Rutherford fifty years ago. Fifteen years ago he joined the C. R. Soley Company and was its secretary treasurer at the time of his death.

Mr. Stevens was a charter member of the Union Club and Bowling Springs Gun Club of Rutherford and Farragut Post No. 28, G. A. R. He is survived by his wife, one son, William P. Stevens, and one daughter, Mrs. Emily Morgan of New York.
